WASHINGTON, May 2.—The correspondence respecting the condition of the Israelites in Russia sent to Congress to-day is very voluminous, and includes all on the subject during the past ten years. Wickham Hoffman, Esq., etc., St. Petersburg—Sin-Prejudice of race and creed having in our day given way to the claims of our common himsunity, the people of the United States have heard with great regret the stories of the sufferings of the Jews in Russia. It may be that the accounts in the newspapers are exaggerated, and the same may be true of some private reports. Making, however, due allowance for misrepresentations, it can searcely be doubted that much has been done which humane and first persons must condemn. The President, of course, feels that the government of the emperor should not the held morally Jesponshole for acts which it considers wrong, but which it may be powerfess to prevent. If that be true of this case, it would be werse than useless for me to direct you, as a representative of the United loweriess to prevent. If that be true of this case, it would be worse than useless for me to direct you, as a representative of the United States, to give official expression to the feeling which this treatment of the Jews calls forth in this country. Should, however, the attifude of the Bussian government be different; and should you be of opinion that a more vigorous effort might be put forth for the prevention of this great wrong, you will. If a tavorable opportunity offers, state, with all proper deference, that the feeling of friendship which the United States entertains for Russia prompts this government to express a hope that the imperial government will find means to cause the persecution of these unfortunate fellowhengs to case. This instruction devolves a delicate duty upon you, and a wide discretion is given you in its execution. However much this republic may disapprove of affairs in other nationalities it does not conceive that it is its right or province officiously and offensively to intermeddle.
